Park Stewardship Posters Highlight Natural, Cultural Resources

The Fairfax County Park Authority has developed two stewardship awareness posters which are now available in limited quantities to the public for $2 a piece. The posters highlight historic, cultural and natural resources in Fairfax County and are an extension of a countywide effort to educate citizens about the importance and value of resource protection and stewardship. Posters can be purchased at a variety of Park Authority facilities including Nature Centers and historic properties.

One poster features photographs of some of the more than three million artifacts currently held and protected by the Park Authority. The companion poster introduces viewers to the world of natural resources with photographs depicting fauna and wildlife commonly found within our community. The aim of the information campaign is to inspire residents to learn more about stewardship and ultimately to take action. These two posters join a series of four topical brochures already published and available online at <http://www.fairfaxcounty.gov/parks/resources/stewardship.htm>.
